Tournament of Roses Parade

Brandon and Connor Hill, grandsons of Lee and Marsha Hill, marched in the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, California, this year with their Mercer Island High School Marching Band. Brandon is a drum major, and Connor is a tuba player.

In addition to the band’s talent, this group of young men and women stood out in another very special way. The Puerto Rican Band was invited to play in the parade as well, but because of the hurricane that had ravaged the country a few months earlier, the school, instruments and uniforms were all destroyed. Brandon, along with the entire Mercer Island Marching Band, raised $55,000 to assist them in getting new uniforms and instruments as well as transportation to LAX so the Puerto Rican Band could participate in the parade. Brandon also helped them with a joint formation, which they performed that week in the Tournament of Roses BANDFEST.

The Daily Journal’s 2018 Female Sports Citizen of the Year
Amanda Jensen

Amanda Jensen, daughter of Dennis and Linda Jensen, was named The Daily Journal’s 2018 Female Sports Citizen of the Year. The Daily Journal’s Citizen of the Year awards are given annually to six “exceptional individuals who have made prime contributions to the place they call home. Amanda, a lifelong resident of Bourbonnais, is a graduate of BBCHS, a graduate and former assistant softball coach at ONU, and is presently the head softball coach at the University of St. Francis in Joliet. As a resident of the community, as a team player and as a professional player and coach, she has always strived to help others be the best that they can be. Congratulations, Amanda, on your outstanding achievement!

Meet our New Neighbors

Dawn and Alan Webber live at 1165 Las Combes with their dog, Jordy. Before moving to Bordeaux Estates, they lived on Jeremy Drive in Bourbonnais. Alan is CEO at A.N. Webber, Inc. The Webbers have four children. Sarah, their daughter, is married to Matt Schore, and they have two children. Shannon is married to Dan DePaolo, and they have three children. Rebecca (Rusling) has two children. Zachary, their son, is engaged to Aly Larocca. Dawn and Alan have seven grandchildren. They say they “always loved the neighborhood” and are glad to be living here. They are spending the winter in Arizona.
